DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 26-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Wilk et al (USPN 5,749,376). Wilk discloses a system that includes a reservoir (12) of solvent (14), an array (multiple used suture needles or hypodermic needles) having a plurality of micro-perforators (each needle has a micro-perforator at the tip). The perforators dissolve upon contact with the solvent in the reservoir. See 3:10+. The perforators can include a drug within the lumen of the perforator after injection into a patient. The residual drug in the lumen of the perforator can be released from the lumen during degradation of the perforator by the solvent in the reservoir. See 3:51+ for disclosure of use with injecting insulin or other medicaments.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 30-45 are allowed.

Claim 29 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Art Unit: 3763

The prior art fails to teach a system that includes, among all the limitations, a patch with a plurality of micro-perforators on a first side of the patch formed from a matrix material that can be dissolved in combination with a reservoir including a solvent effective to dissolve the matrix material that can be attached to a second side of the patch.

The prior art also fails to teach a method that includes the steps of forming a plurality of channels in tissue by dissolving a plurality of perforators made from a matrix material inserted into the tissue in combination with delivering the substance through the formed plurality of channels.

The prior art most similar is to Lee (USPN 5,250,023) and Sun (USPN 6,532,386) which both disclose perforators, a reservoir for a solvent and a drug. However, neither reference teaches dissolving the perforators which are made from a matrix material or forming channels by the dissolution of perforators made from a matrix material.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
